Quick Silver Theater Company is an award-winning New York based collective dedicated to amplifying the collective voice, individual potential, and overall presence of underrepresented and marginalized communities throughout the American theatrical landscape. Founded in 2013 by Tyrone Henderson and Lizan Mitchell, QST aims to shine a light on our common humanity, reflecting back to us our depth and complexity, and elevating our lives to a height worthy of art. We strive to shift the dynamics of traditional storytelling and localize our work in a specificity of culture/race, class, gender, sexuality, economics, and/or geography.

Quick Silver Theater Company would like to thank Elizabeth Henderson. Our Playwrights of Color Summit's success is due to her continued love and support.

The Playwrights and the Plays

'Bear, Woman' by Inés Del Castillo

Lozen, along with her father and cousin, is on track to creating an innovative and prosperous future for her small town, Morganville. Everything is stopped short when she is raped by Roman; a god who helped found the city and protects it to this day.

In a political game, Lozen is condemned to death for Roman's actions. The entire tragedy triggers deep changes to Lozen's belief system (and her very being) that cause her to transform herself and all those around her as she ultimately gives birth to something new.

It's the anniversary of his wife's passing and every year he holds a memorial. On the eve of the service, Father falls unexpectedly ill and his daughter returns home. Secrets are revealed as she sorts through a collection of childhood memories, artifacts, and stories. With the help of his daughters and friends, Father is forced to confront the past in order to prepare for the future. 'The Bright Edges of the World' explores the power of resilience in the face of tragedy.

'The Bright Edges of the World' by Shelley Fort

'Albino Deer' by Quick Silver Theater Company

A hybrid work -- part documentary theater, part devised script -- that examines the nature of memory and place. Through ongoing interviews with Geneva residents and experts, an examination of the public record, ancillary research, and creative writing, Quick Silver Theater Company members are drafting a work that will reflect the proud character of the Geneva community.
